There seems to be ome ill feeling between members of the Y. M. C. A. team since their trip of Denver, and it is doubtful if the same unch of players can be brought tother again this year. It is said that wo or three of the players on the trip of Denver were given berths in the regular sheper and the rest of the team put in the torrist sleeper. This brought protest from the latter players. One of these men said it might be all right of have the stars of an opera company eep in a Pullman and put the chorus iris back in the tourist, but this would of work on a football team. The tourist car members of the team are still one, and some of their refuse to play or this reason.

M. C. A. and National Guards. At the present time neither is doing rauch, and it looks as if their chances for games were exceedingly slim. The Guards are unable to get games and the Y. M. C. A. does not seem able to get together for practice. A Guard player suggested yesterday that it would be better for both teams and at the same time settle the question of a strong eleven in this city for the two teams to combine and make one good eleven, which could be kept busy for the rest of the year. The combination of the two teams would make an aggregation that could successfully compete with the University and Agricultural college. Both the latter teams have offered games to the Y. M. C. A. and it is thought would readily accept a challenge from a combination of the two teams. The soldiers at the fort are now organizing a strong eleven, and a game with this team on Christmas day would be a good card. The latter team, with the 'varsity and Aggies, would give the consolidated eleven three hard games to play yet this year. Here is an opportunity for Managers Porter and Hicks to form a combination that would materially help the sport out for the rest of the year.

A good story has just leaked out on one of the "Aggies" when the team was one of the "Aggles" when the team was in the city a week ago to play the university. Several of the members of the team come from "away back in the country," and life in the city is full of mystery to them. One of the boys was assigned to a room with a folding bed instead of the old-fashioned kind seen at home. The player said afterward that he had a "hunch" the thing standing in the corner was a bed, but try as he might he could not work the combination. He spent the night sleeping in the elevator rather than ask one of his team mates how to open the contrivance.

Manager McChrystal of the High school football team is auxious that the credit feetball team is auxious that the credit for the playing done by the High school team in Saturday's game be given to the proper person. McChrystal says that Coach Boyle is wholly responsible for the fine showing made by the students, and the members of the team are anxious to show their appreciation of Mr. Boyle's efforts. The High school team has had a lard row to hoe this year. At the beginning of the season they were scarcely able to creatize a team, and were un-

Engineer Cosgrove, one of the men killed.

The only evidence of importance was given by Jack Davis, who was conductor on the freight. He said when Engineer Cosgrove did not stop at Orchard, as his order required, he started for the engine. He had reached the seventh car from the engine when the crash came. He was thrown to the ground, but was not injured beyond a few bruises. Cosgrove told him he alone was to blame for the accident.

Davis also said Cosgrove's engine had no headlight, corroborating the statement made immediately after the wreck by Engineer McDowell of the helper engine. The light had gone out shortly after the train left Nampa. The conductor saw a flash ahead and stopped the train by applying the air from the caboose. An investigation revealed that the headlight had exploded, so the engine The bodies of Cosgrove and Wallace.
